PHOENIX, August 11th, 2021 – Clairvoyant, a global data engineering and data science services firm, announced today that it has obtained the experience, credentials, and certifications required to participate in the Amazon Web Services (AWS) Public Sector Partner (PSP) Program. The AWS PSP Program recognizes AWS Partners with cloud-based solutions and experience across education, health, government, and nonprofits around the world. “We are extremely proud and honored to achieve the goal of AWS PSP membership, and it reflects our commitment to work with global public sector organizations. Going into the future, we look forward to a strong and successful relationship with AWS,” said Chandra Ambadipudi, CEO Clairvoyant. “Our long-standing work with AWS has yielded extraordinary business outcomes for our clients and this new association further validates the rigor and expertise that exists within Clairvoyant.”

While the global pandemic brought on by COVID-19 has accelerated the demand for digital citizen services, public sector agencies and institutions are being challenged with ever-increasing data volumes, shrinking budgets and aggressive cyber threats. AWS's Services help Clairvoyant deliver solutions with flexibility, scalability, and performance to meet the current and future needs of educational institutions, healthcare organizations, government agencies and nonprofit organizations.
